Case - Timothy N. Pfeiffer,
Subject - Homicide, New Brunswick, N.J.
Operative - 312.

312/Halfner, Mr. Bradley

named Voorse. It seems that Smith told Voorse that he wanted to sue the paper, but that Voorse talked him out of it.

Upon returning from Lincoln Gardens, Operative and Mr. Bradley stopped at the Cafe of Lambert Zoller, at #139 French St., New Brunswick, N.J.

Operative and Mr. Bradley had a couple drinks of liquor in the above mentioned place, and then left. Upon getting outside Operative remarked that they were pretty daring and open in selling liquor in the place - To this Mr. Bradley remarked, saying, "Well, they are all doing it, and paying for protection."

Mr. Bradley and Operative then visited the place of Paul Wagi at 108 French St., New Brunswick, N.J., and there had another drink of liquor. Upon leaving Wagi's place Operative and Mr. Bradley proceeded to the railroad station and joined Garry Kenny.

Garry Kenny informed Operative and Mr. Bradley, that a reporter had just informed him that Mott was up against it, and did not know what to do as the case was dying out.

At 10.30 p.m. Operative left the company of Garry Kenny and Mr. Bradley, and proceeded to his room and discontinued.
